

MEET DAVE TRUEB

Dave got his professional start working with the March of Dimes and Salvation Army before entering into a career in Real Estate in 2003.

Dave's canny instincts when determining current market value are only one of the many weapons in his talent set. His number crunching education has come from concrete, everyday business dealings and his degree from the University of Alabama.

Born in Indiana and well journeyed throughout the South and Midwest, Dave is a father of two and spark-plug of motivation. Outside the office he's a writer and artisan, a maker of (bad) jokes, life long Jeep driver and self proclaimed geek (which he wears well). He can often be found out with his friends for dinner, at home with his kids, or working on his website.
